Austrian Dead Strew the Ground After Violent
Attack Is Repulsed.

ROME, Nov. 10 (via Paris).—The following official statement was issued today at the headquarters of the Italian General Staff:

"Continuously increasing activity of artillery and aeroplanes on both sides is reported along the Trentino front."

"On the night of Nov. 8 in the upper Cordevole the enemy tried with strong forces to recapture the summit of Col di Lana. After repulsing a violent attack, our men assumed the offensive and, harrying the flying enemy, reached and stormed the summit of Monte Seis, which rises 7,700 feet to the north of Col di Lana."

"In Carnia there was an intense artillery action. Our guns dispersed enemy groups in the Koder (Gall) Valley and on Monte Lodin and bombarded the Salsitz Railroad Station at the head of the Fella Valley."

"On a height west of Gorizia on the night of the 7th, after an intense artillery preparation and volleys of bombs, strong infantry columns attacked our positions, but were repulsed, leaving the ground covered with corpses."

"On the Carso yesterday nothing of importance occurred."

"One of our dirigibles on the night of the 8th, after rising above a dense bank of clouds, crossed the Isonzo zone and Vipacco and then bombarded the town of Gorizia, which was defended by the enemy's searchlights, but eluded the fire of the anti-aircraft guns and returned unscathed to our lines."

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Turin correspondent of the Chronicle sends a description of the storming of Col di Lana, the 8,000-foot mountain fortress in the Dolomites, which commands the road to Friaul Pass.

"The Col di Lana," the correspondent remarks, "served the Austrians not only as a giant guard over the Dolomite highway but as an ever-present menace to Italian Cadore. Its envelopment began from the first days of the war with the surprise and capture of the neighboring heights of Santa Lucia and Monte Pore."

"The conquest of Col di Lana has smashed into pieces one of Austria's adamantine gateways into the Trentino, and robbed them of their forts in the Parcia and Livingalongo valleys. Their chief support place is now securely within the Italian dominions."

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE

Says glass of hot water before breakfast washes poisons from system.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, securing and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminatory organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.—Adv.

COLOGNE GAZETTE PRAISES U. S. NOTE

Newspaper Declares That England "Has Been Unmasked by an Unprejudiced Party."

BERLIN, (via wireless to Sayville) Nov. 10.—This note is a historical document of first rank," declared the Cologne Gazette, in an editorial today, praising America's formal protest to Great Britain.

"English statesmen are always speaking of the sanctity of treaties and casting as protectors of small nations," continued the Gazette. "Now England has been unmasked by an unprejudiced party."

"If the American Government will act according to the tenor and spirit of this note, it will win everlasting merit for freeing the oceans from English despotism."

RED CROSS ASKS TRUCE FOR BURIAL OF DEAD

Rulers in the Warring Powers Urged to Act in Feeling of Charity.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—An appeal for truces to allow the burial of the dead and acquittal relatives of the fallen with their names is being made to the rulers of the warring powers by the International Red Cross.

"The most elementary feeling of charity, the most imperative appeal of pity," it says, "demand all useful measures to acquaint families with the fate of the fallen."

The appeal asks that positive instructions be sent to military commanders with a view to the mitigation of needless aggravation of the sufferings of war.

HARD FIGHTING GOES ON AT THE DARDANELLES

Turks Claim Minor Successes in Violent Artillery Duels Near the Straits.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 9 (via London, Nov. 10).—An official statement issued today at the Turkish War Office was as follows:

"On the Dardanelles front artillery duels continued. At the mouth of the Asmakdere our artillery destroyed a bomb mortar position north of Messtantine. Near Ari Burnu and Sunphubair there were infantry engagements with violent hand grenade fighting on both sides. Our artillery there effectively bombarded enemy trenches. Some minor artillery successes were gained."

"On the Sedd-ul-Bahr front there was light infantry and brisk artillery fire, with bomb engagements, two enemy monitors and one torpedo boat participating."

GERMANY ADOPTS STRICTER METHODS TO HUSBAND FOOD

Government Confiscates All Oils and Fats—Meat Tickets Next.

AMSTERDAM (via London), Nov. 10.—A despatch received here from Berlin announces that the Federal Council has voted to confiscate all oils and fats, which henceforth will be sold only through a Government commission.

The Vossische Zeitung says the German authorities are considering the introduction of meat cards in order to prevent housewives from laying in stores of meat for the days on which no meat is supposed to be used.

BERLIN (via London), Nov. 10.—National Liberal members of the Reichstag at a conference in Eisenach adopted resolutions declaring that counter action in the high food prices was the most important task in home politics. The resolutions said the action already taken was insufficient and other measures for enforcing economy, like the introduction of meat, lard and butter tickets, must be adopted and that means must be found to supply peasant stock growers with foodstuffs. The conference also discussed the censorship.

BERNE, Switzerland (via Paris), Nov. 10.—The Government has prohibited the exportation of fresh milk from Switzerland and also has decreed that only the surplus over what is required for domestic consumption may be used in the manufacture of condensed milk. The latter regulation will have an important bearing upon one of the chief Swiss industries.

BELGIAN COUNSELLOR FOR U. S. IS BARRED

Germany Objects to Deleval, Who Was Attached to the Legation at Brussels.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—M. Deleval, a Belgian, employed by the United States as Counsellor to the Legation at Brussels, has left Belgium and will not return to his post because Germany has given notice that he is persona non grata. The State Department will not admit that Deleval has been removed, but announced today that he had left Belgium and will not return.

Whether his unacceptability to Germany came about through the activities of the American Legation staff in the case of Edith Cavell is not made clear.

Under international law Germany is not called upon to give the reasons for objecting to Deleval. The United States could no longer retain him as an attaché of its legation on soil under German de facto control.

German authorities already have disclaimed any displeasure at the activities of American Minister Whitlock. Deleval left Belgium with Mr. Whitlock.

CZAR AND HEIR WIN MEDALS FOR BRAVERY

St. George Crosses of Fourth Class Conferred for Daring Under Fire.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—"Gen. Ivanoff, as senior cavalier of the Order of St. George," says the Petrograd correspondent of the Morning Post, "was recently commissioned by the chapter of the order to beg the Emperor's acceptance of the cross of the fourth class of the order for bravery."

"The enthusiasm inspired in the army by His Majesty's presence on several occasions in the zone of the enemy's fire," says the official statement of the chapter, "has excited the already high spirits of the Russian army and produced an increasing number of daring and glorious deeds of arms."

"The czar accepted the chapter's petition and will henceforth wear the cross. The chapter likewise petitioned him to confer the medal of the order of the fourth class upon the Czarevitch in commemoration of his having been in the zone of German fire while visiting the field hospitals."

CONDEMN FLOATING HOTEL AS FIRETRAP

Working Girls Lose Homes on "Jacob A. Stampler," Millionaire Arbuckle's Odd Charity Hobby.

The U-boat of the Fire Prevention Bureau today figuratively torpedoed the floating hotel "Jacob A. Stampler," at the foot of East Twenty-third Street, for twelve years the home of working girls.

Thirty-eight passengers, all women, were lost as boarders.

The girls were told last night they must get out to-morrow morning. There were scenes of hysteria. Many of them declare they have no idea where they will go. This afternoon everybody is packing up, even to Herr George E. Becker, the chef, who keeps dropping cups in the hallway.

The "Stampler" has had a hard luck history. She has been sunk, she has been reported in need of funds, and ten days ago she caught fire. The Fire Prevention Bureau says it would cost about $400 to make her safe. The old ship, conducted as a home for itself supporting a staff of 100, was owned by John Arbuckle, the coffee millionaire, who died without making specific provision for its support.

OIL STEAMER ABLAZE; CREW REPORTED SAFE

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 10.—All hope was abandoned today for the Italian steamer Livetta, afloat in the Gulf of Mexico, about sixty-five miles east of Sabine Pass, with forty thousand cases of gasoline and eighty thousand cases of oil on board.

A wireless from the steamer Gulfstream, standing by, reported the fire was burning fiercely, in holds Nos. 3 and 4. The tugs Russell and John Sealy are standing by, while the tug Senator Bailey is rushing to the scene.

NEEDA PENTECOST, NOT ARMAGEDDON, IS BRYAN'S RETORT

Hits Wilson and Roosevelt—
Says T. R. Would Class
Christ With Mollicoddies.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Former Secretary Bryan today added a chapter to his disagreement with President Wilson over the question of National Defense by issuing a formal statement in comment on the President's recent quotation from the scriptures in support of his advocacy of military preparedness. The same quotation had been used by Col. Roosevelt in a recently published article.

"I have read the quotation from Ezekiel," said Mr. Bryan. "It is not surprising that Mr. Roosevelt should consult the Old Testament rather than the New, because he would class Christ with the mollicoddies, but why should the President, a Presbyterian elder, pass over the New Gospel, in which Jesus is the chief cornerstone and build his defense upon a passage in the Old Testament written at a time when the Children of Israel were surrounded by enemies?"

"But even if the passage came from the New Testament, it could not support the President's plan. The words quoted by him have reference to an actual attack. The passage says the watchman must sound the trumpet when he sees the sword come upon the land."

"The sword has not come upon the land and no enemy is in sight. The President said in New York that we are not threatened from any quarter, that he has friendly relations with all nations and that there is no fear among us."

"It is all right for Mr. Roosevelt to sound the trumpet, because all colors look red to him. He sees armies marching upon us from every direction. But the President is a man of peace and he is in a position to know that no one is threatening to attack us."

"It is surprising, first, that in looking up Bible authority he should ignore the teachings of Christ and second, that he should select a passage that refers, not to preparation against imaginary dangers, but to immediate action to meet an attack actually made."

BARNEY CORN SWEARS PAL SHOT HOTEL ATLAN CLERK

"I'm Innocent; Joe Bourret Killed Miller," Gunman Testifies in Own Defense.

Barney Corn, otherwise known as "Jew Barney," on trial before Judge Malone in General Sessions, charged with the murder of Charles Miller, night clerk of the Hotel Atlan, in West Thirty-four Street, March 14 last, swore today he was innocent.

"As there is a God above," Corn exclaimed, "I never killed Miller. He was my friend. Joe Bourret killed him."

Bourret swore yesterday it was Corn who committed the murder.

"Corn told the jury today that he had gone to the Atlan with Bourret to persuade Miller not to tell the police about Bourret holding up and robbing a drunken man in front of the hotel the night before."

"After Miller gave me his promise not to squeal on Bourret," Corn testified, "Bourret got fresh and called Miller a vile name. Miller made a crack at Bourret, who drew his revolver and fired two shots. Both shots hit Miller, who fell on top of me. Bourret fired four more shots, all of which hit Miller."

"The story you tell now is different from the story you told Assistant District Attorney Deuel at the time of your arrest," Assistant District Attorney Edwards asked Corn.

"I lied to Mr. Deuel," replied Corn.

BRIDEGROOM'S WATCH FOUND ON BEST MAN

"Bridesmaid Gave It to Me," Prisoner Tells the Police.

The wedding of William Kozicki and Mary Pawliski was being celebrated by their friends with a dance at No. 266 Henry Street, when the bridegroom ordered the musicians to stop playing.

"Some one here has stolen my gold watch," he announced.

He delegated the best man at the wedding, Nikolaj Malbroder, also his best friend, to search the other men present, but the watch was not found.

Early this morning Malbroder himself was arrested at his home, No. 419 East Ninth Street, and searched at Police Headquarters. The police say they found the bridegroom's watch in the prisoner's pocket.

"The bridesmaid gave it to me," they quote him as saying.

WHO SHOULD BE BOSS?

What Rights Have Parents of the Baby Boss?—
"Sleepless Father" Unfolds Sad Tale of a
Merciless Tyrant Who Rules His Home.

By Marguerite Moors Marshall.
When baby is boss, what is to be done?
I ask this question at the bidding of an earnest masculine correspondent, upon whom should be conferred the Order of the Midnight Floor-walker. Through his brave, yet pathetic, confession there looms a Problem with a capital P, which I here submit to Evening World readers. One may harden one's heart against long husband or boss wife, and a heart of sufficiently tough fibre usually finds a way of dealing with its foe. But when a small, blue-eyed, beguiling infant is boss, one's heart usually betrays one by going over to the enemy.

But "Sleepless Father," out of his own dearly-won experience, puts the case so much better than I can. He writes: "If you can show me how to curb the tyrant who bosses my home—it used to be our home—I shall be grateful forever."

"He was not always thus. Indeed, at the beginning he was midwifed himself; never gave me a harsh look, much less thought of uttering a cross word. Now I despair of pleasing him, and when a day passes without his striking or pinching me or pulling my hair I feel almost happy."

"He criticizes the cooking and the service, often beating the table with a spoon to emphasize his displeasure. Imagine my feelings when he does this in the presence of our guests. I cannot go to the theatre or a concert without his august permission. Why, if I dare to leave home at any time without his consent he makes a most distressing scene."

"He is whimsical and capricious, as tyrants always are. You may think I am exaggerating, but I give you my word that he often compels me to get up in the middle of the night and not only sing 'about the fire engine, the steam roller and a big real automobile.' You may think it will be easy to overcome his tyranny because he is little more than two years old; but I assure you that Nero in his palmy days had nothing on Tim."

Neither a nagging wife nor a bullying husband could be half so despot. Help us, and may heaven bless you!

"SLEEPLESS FATHER."

Out of a vast, profound and utterly shameful ignorance of babies and their little ways, I dare to suggest that there should be a set of domestic statutes establishing what is legal and illegal infant domination. Parents, like other valuable and growing-acreer game, should be protected during certain days and nights in the year; and also shielded against cruel and unusual punishments, such as hair-pulling and pinching. Parents should be allowed their afternoons off, and though undoubtedly they must be criticized for their own good children ought to be spared of harsh words when father and mother show that they are doing the best they can.

But has an Evening World parent discovered a sure method of escaping or even tempering the servitude enforced by Boss Baby? It is true that in many an American household there is almost complete and to an outsider utterly unreasonable subordination of the interests of the parents to those of the children. Is this a desirable state of affairs? If not, how can it be remedied? Let me hear from some of the fathers and mothers who read The Evening World as to whether the "quatter sovereignty" of the baby is really good for him or for the rest of the family.

"Dear Madam: In reply to your question as to 'Who should be boss at home?' I may say that my husband and I arranged before we were married that there should be no boss in our home, but that we should be pals. And after sixteen years of married life I must say that it has been a success. We have been pals in everything, through dark days and bright days, and we take it as a great compliment when our bachelor friends of either sex say that after a visit to our home it always makes them long for a home of their own."

"I have never known what it is to be afraid to tell my husband any little fault or mistake, but to know married women who have to lie and deceive their husbands because they are afraid of the 'lord and master.' If a husband and wife were pals in the true sense of the word—not just fair weather pals, but true pals—there would be no need for lies and deceit."

"I also wish to say that my husband, after keeping enough for his carfare and pocket money, gives me the rest of his pay and I never have to account to him for one penny. He says he has every confidence in me and knows I shall waste nothing. I never ask for any more than he gives me. This is our experience in a bossless home. Both being English born, we have seen the results when the home is ruled by a tyrant and an autocrat and children cringe at the sound of the boss's footsteps."

"Our children are both bright and fearless and look forward to papa's return at night."

Side by side they should go, neither one a boss. "Dear Madam: The various letters sent in by readers of The Evening World in regard to whether the man or the woman should be 'boss' in a household, have been interesting and amusing."

"To my mind, however, the keynote of the situation has not yet been struck. A household in which either the wife or the husband is sole 'boss' would prove intolerable to any fair-minded person. Perhaps I believe this because I am a business woman and unmarried. Those who have not had the experience of married life always have plenty of theories as to what should be done. Whether those theories could be put into actual practice is a 'horse of another color.'"

"Nevertheless, I believe that in order to create the highest type of companionship in marriage, the idea of a boss must be eliminated. No self-respecting person would submit to being 'bossed.' There should be co-operation between husband and wife, calling for self-sacrifice on the part of both, but if there is true love and respect for each other submission is only a joy, not a hardship."

"Personally, I would not be 'bossed,' nor wish to be a boss. The man I marry must be bigger and stronger than I am in character. Through this very strength and bigness he should have enough respect for his wife to allow her an equal standing with him in the household. I have no respect for a man who is tyrannical; neither do I respect one who is willing to be led which ever way the wind blows. Just because a man works with his brains or hands to provide a living for his wife and family, he is not a monarch in his household. His wife is economically as self-supporting as he is, and has a right to share in the consideration of the problems which arise and to aid in their decision. I believe in representation in household affairs, and I believe in representation in political affairs. Votes for women, in the home, as well as in the workaday world."

"The right road of married life must be travelled together, side by side, with true understanding on the part of both; not one ahead of the other, with commands from one and subservience from the other. Any man who attempts to boss his wife is a brute. Any woman who attempts to boss her husband is a tyrant. The sooner both men and women recognize the necessity of true equality, mentally, morally and physically, the more quickly will the ideal be reached in the relationship between men and women. I. MARJORY M."

THE MAN-EATER!
The man who wrote "TARZAN OF THE APES" has just written for The Evening World a still finer novel, "THE MAN-EATER!" This new story by Edgar Rice Burroughs, is a romance of the jungle and of wild beasts. All the thrilling elements that made "TARZAN" so popular are found in "THE MAN-EATER!" "THE MAN-EATER!" will begin serial publication in The Evening World next Monday, Nov. 15. Read it.

Mrs. Sadie Untermyer left $141,973. Mrs. Sadie Untermyer, sister-in-law of Samuel Untermyer, who died June 1, 1915, left a net estate of $141,973, according to the report filed in the tax transfer office of the State Comptroller here yesterday by Appraiser William J. Campbell. Under the will Eugene Untermyer, a son, is to receive the income only until he attains the age of twenty. Mrs. Untermyer left jewelry valued at $15,000, a three strand necklace containing 255 pearls being appraised at $2,500.

MECKLENBURG DUKE IN ZEPPELIN VISITS FERDINAND

He Makes Eight-Hour Air Trip
From Hungary to Bulgaria,
Then Starts Back.

BERLIN, (via Sayville wireless) Nov. 10.—Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria entertained the German Duke of Mecklenburg, a visitor by Zeppelin from Timmesvar, Hungary, at Sofia today.

The 250-mile air trip was made by the Duke and his party in eight hours. Parts of Hungary, Serbia and Bulgaria were crossed. Ferdinand, his ministers and an immense crowd met the voyagers on their arrival.

"This is one of the great moments of my life," said the Bulgarian ruler, grasping the Duke's hands as he stepped from the Zeppelin gondola.

After a two-hour stay in Sofia the airship reascended and took the crew and passengers back to Timmesvar.

8 Visits for $5

The reason why many people suffering from catarrhal troubles are not cured is because they cannot afford to receive proper treatment often enough.

The offer of the nominal fee of $5 a visit for 8 visits at this time is a real boon to all sufferers from catarrhal diseases as it enables them to receive treatment as often as it is needed.

I take this opportunity of notifying all those who require treatment for catarrhal trouble that until Dec. 1 my fee for treatment will be a charge of $5.00 for eight visits. This is a real boon to all those who require treatment and medicine. In order to take advantage of this low offer you must call on or before Nov. 30. All patients who begin their treatment before Dec. 1 will receive treatment as long as they require it without any increase in the fee.

If you suffer with closed nostrils, discharging nostrils, and find that you have lost your voice, or have a bad throat, if you have discharging eyes, I will be pleased to have you visit my office. It will cost you nothing for an examination and advice.
